DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Eikelboom et al '006 in view of Peterson '170.

Eikelboom et al teach converting an acquired image into an interlaced image. A pair of toggling mirrors toggle every alternate frame to image the surface of the ocular fundus from slightly different positions with substantial overlapping of image areas. The images are compared and processed using signal processing means 22 to produce a three dimensional representation of the ocular fundus.

Peterson teaches combining two digital images into a superimposed image. The superimposed image comprises additional contrast by simulating lighting effects. The increase in, or enhancement of contrast can be achieved in several ways including digital image processing software.

One of ordinary skill in the art would have found it obvious to use the image combining teaching of Peterson to provide a superimposed image instead of an interlace image with the Eikelboom et al device because toggling of alternate frames to create a stereo pair provides an equivalent digital image file 1A and 1B as shown in Peterson. Further, the increased contrast feature disclosed in Peterson provides motivation for comparing superimposed images to permit subsequent comparison of eye images for different magnifications and perspectives.

Regarding claim 18, one of ordinary skill in the art would have found it obvious to provide a keyboard, a mouse, or a joystick for the control unit comprising processing means 22 because these represent well known accessories for a computer of the type represented by 23.
